

Call for Submissions - On The Wing

On the Wing is Full of Crow's home for nonfiction writes, essays, rants, screeds, opinion and more. Non-conforming, non-timid, non-mainstream, maybe even nonsensical, OTW is looking for writers with true stories to tell that evoke feelings, question the status quo, get deep below the surface of issues, and make our readers think, rethink and even act. Take us by surprise, shed new light using a voice and perspective that we can't find from mainstream media. Culture, Politics, Media, Economics, Hyper-local Issues, Religion, Sex, War, Prison, Drugs – all are fair game for On the Wing. Your writing and work will define what we look like and who we are. Essays, Interviews, Opinions are all welcome for publication. We are looking for top quality, well researched, documented, and highly polished work. Queries are not necessary for work under 5000 words. OTW cannot offer compensation other than the knowledge that your published work will be showcased on a unique platform and read by millions. Well, maybe not millions – yet. Submit cover letter and original, unpublished manuscripts for review to: mjsolender@fullofcrow.com.

About

On The Wing is an important part of Full of Crow. It features diverse voices, eclectic styles, and different points of view.

Our Content

Nonfiction Essays, Opinion, Rants, Screeed, Interviews, Politics, Sex, Drugs, War, Prison, Culture, Economics, Your World, Our World, the World. All are found at On The Wing, the newest project brought to you by Full of Crow.

On the Wing is what you'd expect from our editors.

Smart writing.

Unique point of view.

Anything but conventional.

Our Readers

Our readers want to go somewhere they have never been and see things that they may know exist, but have not explored up close. They want to taste it for themselves, unfiltered, unfettered and unencumbered from political correctness. OTW readers are big boys and girls that think, decide and act on their own.

Our Writers

Our writers don't spoon feed their message – they place it right out in the open for debate, conversation and dialogue. They have a voice and will be heard. They come from roads less traveled and aren't afraid to challenge the status quo with their thoughts and their work. They are in prisons, the military, classrooms, boardrooms, warehouses, row houses, cities, farms, small towns, unemployment lines, and bread lines.

Our writers have little in common other than a compulsion to tell their stories to you. They have multiple publications and zero publications to their credit. One thing however is certain, when their work appears here it is a thoughtful, polished, well articulated, moving write that will inspire, motivate, infuriate or exacerbate you.

We reach out to writers who are often marginalized, distrusted, who might be misunderstood. We publish things in this space that make us rethink our notions, question our assumptions, see things from another point of view.

We welcome all writers, from all walks of life: write about what you know, what you've seen, what you have been witness to, what you have lived through. Talk to us about how we can present your story.

Our Voice

The opinions express belong to the writer, the editors do not necessarily endorse a particular view or opinion because it is printed here in this space.

The posts here are presented with attribution as the words of contributors, who submit material for inclusion. No associations are intended, implied, or asserted.